"We shall neither fail nor falter; we shall not weaken or tire...gives us the tools and we will finish the job." – Winston Churchill

The end of the year is here! It seems like 2009 flew by! This year World Technical Services has a lot to be proud of; we have picked up a considerable amount of new contracts, regained a few old contracts, and renewed relationships with many contract coordinators. Though there were some setbacks this year we were able to push through and make it a successful 12 months. None of this would have been possible without the hard work and dedication from each and every one of you. We would like to send our sincerest thank you for your commitment to this company and our vision. As we go into 2010 we want everyone to be safe and ready to make next year even better than this one.

Message from the CEO

Greetings from San Antonio,
This has been a very eventful year full of growth and new challenges to overcome. I am proud of what World Technical Services has done to improve our customer satisfaction and attention to detail but I know that we can do much more. I look forward to another year of growth but we will grow at a steadier pace so that the new contracts that we take on will have less of a strain on you out in the field and the office staff in San Antonio. Growth is great but we must make sure that we start these contracts on the right foot and never let our stellar service lapse. I thank everyone in the World Technical Services family for all their hard work in making this past year a successful one as I look forward to the many new opportunities of 2010. May God bless all your families, all the people of the world and have a very Happy New Year.
Best Regards,

Alan E. Warrick II

by what they attempt"*

Contract Highlights: Ft. Hood

We would like to recognize the new Pleasanton Road Janitorial contract in San Antonio. In under a week of service the workers in the building have already made numerous comments about the improvements of the cleanliness and service of the building. Keep up the good work!

Getting Pregnant Can Land Some Women Jail Time

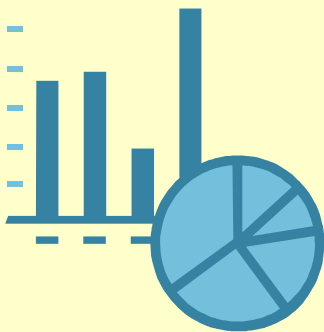

Monday December 21, 2009

Women who get pregnant, and the men who impregnate them, can be sent to jail in one Division serving in Iraq. This is true even if the couple is married. I first heard about Division Commander Major General Anthony Cucolo's decree last week. I had hoped it was just rumor, so I didn't report on it. But it's now showing up in the New York Times.

The usual policy has always been to send women who are pregnant and in combat situations home. A policy to send pregnant women home would make more sense. I get that they want to discourage women from getting pregnant. When I served in the Army, pregnancy was an easy out of your contract, as if you got pregnant, you could choose to leave the Army. I would imagine that in a combat situation, it's even more tempting.

This is simply not right. What about a married couple who has a birth control failure? It happens. Even if you're doing everything you can - what if you miss a pill because you're on a mission that takes too long? Or it just happens? This just seems mean spirited.

What are your thoughts? Have you been in the military? Have you been pregnant and in the military? Or do you just have an opinion? I'll listen to them all!

Outstanding Employee(s) of the Month

We would like to recognize Alan Warrick as our outstanding employee of the month. Alan was unaware that he would be honored but we felt it was fitting to recognize him as our last employee of the month for 2009 and first for 2010. Alan has worked tirelessly to ensure that World Technical Services has been successful this year. He has placed the company before himself and has shown his true love for the work we do here at WTS. Thanks Alan for all that you do. We true appreciate it!
